Example Answer 1

Fortunately, my parents were very strict with me when I was a child. The main reason they were strict and protective of me was because I was an only child. For instance, they would never allow me to stay out late since I would have to walk home alone. Additionally, they rarely allowed me to watch TV as they believed it was a bad influence on me. Instead they encouraged me to read books and make art. Overall, even though my parents were controlling, I do not feel upset about it because I know they were just trying to do the best for me.

Example Answer 2

There are many things that I have learned from watching Korean films. Firstly, the most interesting thing I have learned is about Korean eating customs. For example, when dining at a restaurant Koreans usually order a large amount of food that is shared among all guests rather than each person ordering their own dish. Also, through films I have improved my Korean language skills. Although I am studying Korean at a college, watching Korean movies has taught me a lot of spoken expressions that do not appear in textbooks. To sum up, I have learned a great deal about Korean culture and language from watching its films.
