Example Answer 1

I agree that children should be banned from eating fast food at school for two important reasons. First, fast food it is detrimental to children's health. For instance, fast food is often packed with fat, sugar, salt, and preservatives, which makes them extremely unhealthy for children. In addition, schools should stop serving fast food because it is very expensive. It is a well-known fact that fresh food from a supermarket is significantly cheaper than pre-made fast food. To conclude, for reasons presented above, I believe it is vital that schools stop serving fast food to their students.

Example Answer 2

While both proposals would be beneficial to my country, I recommend investing in a business research center for the following reasons. First and foremost, since my country in currently suffering from a severe economic turndown, investing in a business research would likely provide more solutions to these economic problems than an agricultural research center. Furthermore, businesses tend to create more jobs than agriculture. As unemployment is currently high, creating jobs is a top priority. Given these points, I believe investing in a business research center would yield the most positive results for my country.
